Yearly Supplies

The Board was for a long time occupied in the Consideration of Tenders for the Supply of Articles of Consumption for Ensuing Year =

The Tender for Medicines was the first dealt with. a Committee of the Medical Officer's Of the Union advised Mr Cookes Tender to be accepted.

It was accordingly Prop by D. Doyle DC
Sec P. Redmond

"That as Mr Cookes Tender is the lowest & as he has been the last Contractor that his Tender be accepted"

To this an Amendment was moved
Prop J. Whelan DP
2nd J. Mr Forlime

"That as the Cost of Medicines & Medical appliances in this Union is found to be much higher than in neighbouring Unions, and as we believe this is on account of the want of competition - that we accept the Tender of the Apothecaries Hall"

On a poll the Amendment was lost by 9 votes to 18 and
Mr Cookes Tender accepted

Illness of P. O. Whelan —

Payment of substitute, in his place

Letter Read 13th June 24.534 — Stating they see no reason to alter the opinion expressed in their letter of 6th inst on this subject.

The Board suggest respectfully that they have no valid option, but to pay a skilled officer, rather than to risk the employment of an untrained party even at a lower figure (assuming that were attainable even) which might lead to great confusion in the R.O.'s accounts.

They think £2. a week not unreasonable (as it is only double the payments made to permanent R.O. for salary items.) for a few weeks time.

Dr Furlong sent in a certificate June 14th — Stating that Whelan R.O will require a further leave of at least 2 wks

Re Workhouse Schools

Mr Hayes proposed, and Mr Breen seconded, the following resolutions:—"That we congratulate Mr John Maguire, male teacher of the Workhouse National School here, on the marked proficiency displayed by the boys under his care, in answering the questions put to them by the Most Rev Dr Browne, Lord Bishop of the Diocese, at confirmation in the Enniscorthy Cathedral on Sunday last, which induced His Lordship to pay themselves and their labourious and zealous teacher, a tribute of praise, richly deserved, and shows in an unmistakeable manner, the care and attention bestowed on those boys by one who has now taught generations of the best business men of every class in Enniscorthy."

"That we also congratulate the Teachers of the Workhouse Female National Schools, for the markedly devotional demeanour presented by the children of such tender age under their care, this combined with their tastefully and cleanly attired appearances. the superior manner in which these poor children answered the questions put to them by His Lordship, reflects the greatest credit on the teachers, and goes to show the great care and attention that has been so studiously bestowed on them by the good Nuns in charge of the female school." Dure
Alleged Negligence of Clerk

Dure Lambets Sureties &c

The following was handed in by John Smiott Oxy and read by the Asst. Clerk. by the direction of the Chairman

—"That in compliance with the wishes of the majority of the ratepayers of Ballyhuskard, Edermine and Kilmallock divisions, who are contemplating a strike against paying poor rates under present existing circumstances, in the face of the carelessness and negligence that seem to exist, until the real cause is made known of the defalcations that have been allowed to take place in these and other divisions of this union from 1886 to 1892, a period of six years, resulting in large losses to ratepayers, especially in the division of Ballyhuskard, where nearly all the sureties of the defaulting collectors reside,—I therefore propose that the Local Government Board be respectfully requested to direct their inspector to hold a sworn inquiry as soon as possible into the causes of so many of these defalcations being allowed to take place in such a short space of time; and also to ascertain if all the facts as stated in the letter of Lambert's sureties to the guardians on 7th September 1893 are true :—

"(1) Has the clerk of the union fully complied in every respect with article 45, number 7, of the general regulations by examining, himself, all the rate-collectors' books, abstracts and receipt blocks at least once every fortnight.

"(2) If so to ascertain how was it he allowed defaulting collector Lambert to remain away from the 29th Sept to the 1st December, '92 (a period of nine weeks), during which time he had £330 outstanding on his books—being from three to four times as much as he had out at the 29th September or any previous year.

"(3) And also to ascertain who was in fault for allowing Lambert to remain away with £330 outstanding in his books up to the 1st December, '92 when it was found he left the country.

"(4) On any former years he had much smaller sums than that amount out on the 1st December? Was it not, therefore, strange that the fact of him having so much more out on the last occasion than formerly did not attract attention or arouse suspicion, in face of the fact that so many defalcations had previously taken place, and besides on this occasion, the good time for collecting rates, from September to December had gone by. Who is responsible for all this negligence and carelessness?

"(5) At the date he left the country his books and warrants were in his possession about eleven months. According to his bond in the clerk's possession, he was bound to close his collection in six months from the date he received his warrants, and was not supposed to have more than £50 in his possession at any time.

"(6) How could the clerk of the union expect that a collector with his warrants in his possession eleven months and £330 outstanding on his books from 29th September to the 1st December, after the best part of the year passing by, could only have £50 in his possession.

"(7) When Lambert did not come in for nine weeks for the clerk to examine his books, receipts, and abstracts, why did not he (the clerk) record his omission to do so in compliance with Article 45, No 8, of the general regulations, on the minutes, so that it would have come under the notice of the guardians again in the reading of the minutes at the next meeting, and especially under the notice of the Local Government Board?

"(8) Did the clerk of the union receive a letter in May, 1891, from a solicitor on behalf of one of Lambert's sureties, who was independent, stating that he would not continue his surety any longer?

"(9) Did he bring that important letter before the board and read it for the guardians, and explain it to them? If so, on what date and who was the chairman on the occasion?

"(10) What order did the board make on it? Was it initialled same as every other document, many of which would be of little importance compared to that?

"(11) Was the receipt of such a very important letter ever recorded on the minutes so that it would come under the notice of the Local Government Board? If so, produce the entry.

"(12) How many days during the month of May, 1891, was the clerk in his office at the workhouse here?

"(13) How many times was the clerk in his office here from May, 1891, until January, 1892, when Lambert received his last warrants to collect the rates, part of which he embezzled?

"(14) Did the clerk inform the board of guardians and Lambert's other sureties before he got his books and warrants in January, 1892, that one of the most independent of his sureties had served notice of withdrawal seven months previous?

"(15) If so, what order did the board make, and was the order put on the minutes?

"(16) Is it not usual for the Local Government Board to order a new bond in such cases? Was it not within the province of the clerk of the union to know this?

"(17) Why was not the surety who had served notice of withdrawal proceeded against with the other sureties?

"(18) With a view of compelling the clerk to be more particular and exact in attending to his duties in his office, so as to prevent as far as possible a repetition of the defalcation of 1886 and 1887, the guardians passed a resolution, 12th September, 1889. How has it been complied with by the clerk in every respect?

"(19) Has any of the present collectors to go to his house since to have tickets initialled, and have they been caused any inconvenience by doing so?

"(20) Have they given out any receipts not initialled on the back, and why?

On the RO bringing forward the case of Bridget Somers - ex 2 Bay. Et nurse in the Fever Hospital there

The Chairman ordered - Relief at 2 weeks at 2/= p week. Chargeable to the Union at large.

On some objections being raised that she was a Divisional charge the Clerk was ordered to lay the facts before the P.L.G. for their opinion.

She has been a nurse in the Fever Hospital Newtownbarry and residing in it. for 19 years past.

It was urged that her residence in an "Union" Institution made her chargeable to the Union at large.

Is it so?

Employment of Local Reporters at Inquiries.

Ordered

Mem

Con

—"That in the opinion of this board the employment of local shorthand writers at the Local Government Board inquiries is desirable in the interests of the ratepayers, as increased expense is involved in the engagement of reporters resident outside the county; and as it is contrary to sound economic principles to pay away large sums of the ratepayers' money to non-residents when the services of competent men in the union are available, we, therefore, respectfully suggest that the Local Government Board recommend their inspectors to secure at local inquiries the services of the local members of the Institute of Journalists, who have that thoroughly topographical knowledge which is so essential to correct notetaking in enquiries of this kind. In accordance with this view, we recommend the employment of the following shorthand writer at the next enquiry under the Labourers Act and all future inquiries in the Union viz:

Mr. W. W. O'Mahony of the People

P. & T. Hayes 2 wh Wheelers

The following Accounts of Expenses incurred under the Sanitary Acts were laid before the Board, viz.:—

Children bitten by a dog afflicted with rabies
Continued

Dr Keating M.O Clonroche by Dr Wrote 8th Aug 1894 | Stating that he was called on to attend three children aged 5. 8 & 10 yrs alas a young girl aged 17 years. alleged to have been bitten by a rabid dog. on Wednesday the 1st August. and that on Sunday the 5th. he received the call & attended that day.

Wired on Monday & Ld Bp. on Tuesday received Enclosed reply.

In the cases of the Children, two of them were merely scratched by the dogs paws. the skin was not broken on the third.

The girl Lacy Courtnacuddy was very severely bitten. the mark of the dogs teeth having been left at both sides of the ankle. skin broken in 7 places. some of the wounds not yet healed.

If the Guardians consider it advisable to send this girl to Paris for treatment in the Pasteur Institute her mother herself are quite satisfied that she be sent.

Dr Martin Murphy Relieving Officer Ferbane also visited the Children alleged to have been bitten (on Tuesday last) viz Laurence & Michl Regan (brothers) aged 7 & 9 years respectively. Bridget Lacey aged 17 years. all living with their parents in a range of neat cottages with 1/2 acres of land attached built by Lord Lorton adjoining the village of Courtnacuddy.

On the 1st Aug. the two little boys Regans, and the child Anne Drury were coming from school when the mad dog, a small Setter, owned by Lord Carews Game Keeper rushed at the Children - biting one of the boys in the hip which sustained upon marks of two teeth - but being bitten through the clothes it is expected no harm will ensue.

The other boy was scratched on the forehead by the dogs paws, apparently, no visible bite on the skin. =

The girl Bridget Lacey 17 yrs of age. was working in a potato plot near the house when she was bitten nearly the same time as the others. there are four well defined tooth marks one side of the shin bone & one at the other side - She was bitten through a woollen stocking - she stated one drop of blood oozed out of each tooth mark. the place bitten is not swollen. nor do she feel pain except when walking. =

The child Drury is living with her parents in a Gate house of Lord Carews on the Demesne - there is a mark of a scratch on the Eye lid under the Eye barely discernable. =

The parents of the children informed they took them into Enniscorthy to the Doctor & had the wounds attended to. but the girl Lacey remained at home. All four children are taking medicine from a woman who has a great reputation for curing rabies (caused by bites of mad Animals) in the human being. and the parents of the Children have the greatest confidence in the efficacy of this medicine which they say has never been known to fail - it is from a decoction of herbs. administered by taking a glassful 3 times a day. =

Some the parents of the children would not agree to have them sent Paris.

Dear Sir.

I regret Exceedingly that upon me should devolve the painful duty of calling the attention of the Board of Guardians to the intemperate habits of the master. —

I have given him Repeated warnings and have again & again Exhorted him to correct his fault. but unhappily my efforts in that direction have proved fruitless.

Now leave the matter in the hands of the Guardians who I have no doubt will adopt such measures as prudence may suggest to provide a Remedy for the Existing Evil.

THE ACTION OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Mr Thos Hayes proposed, and Mr Marks Codd seconded, the following resolution, which was adopted unanimously:—"That it is with indignation that we, the board of guardians of Enniscorthy Union, have seen the attempt made by the unrepresentative House of Lords to create turmoil, discontent and disturbance in Ireland by the insulting manner in which they rejected the Evicted Tenants (Reinstatement) Bill—a measure the justice of which has been repeatedly acknowledged by the Government, and in the interests of public peace passed through the House of Commons by the elected representatives of the people. We now call on the Irish Parliamentary Party to a man and the democracy of Great Britain to insist on the Government taking the only effective method of appeasing public feeling in Ireland by at once devoting all their energies to the destruction of the power of the House of Lords, whose history is one of innumerable crimes against the peace and contentment of Ireland."

Letter read from Mr D Dempsey dated Aug 23rd 1894 as follows

Guardian v Leary & others

Dear Sir,

Beg to report for the information of the Bus - That I attended on Friday the 17th inst at the Sales advertised by the Sheriff under the writ in this action, when no one offered any bidding & the following results were attained in reference to the seizure on each of the 3 Defts. respectively -

Lot 1. 3 acres of oats, some wheat & potatoes seized on the lands of Deft Laurence Leary Ballynamona-Beg.

a Deed of Assignment dated 14th August 1888 from Laurence Leary to Trustees on the marriage of his son John Leary was produced at the sale, by the Sol for the Trustees - the Crops were notwithstanding offered for sale, but there being no bidding the Sale was adjourned.

Copyright: Wexford County Archive

Lot 2. ½ an acre of barley. 1½ acres of oats. ¾ of an acre of potatoes. ½ an am of turnips & mangolds seizes on the lands of the deft Nicholas Doyle - a claim of £18.0.6 for a years Rent having been made in this case & the Pro declining to risk the payment. the Sheriff declined to offer the goods for sale. and the sale was therefore adjourned. =

Lot 3. 3 Acres of oats. 1 acre potatoes & turnips seized on the lands of the Deft Martin Murphy Raheenamonabeg —

In this case a letter from Mr Huggard. Solicitor, Claiming the lands stock & crops for the Trustees of a Deed of the 14th July 1894 was read at the sale the goods were notwithstanding offered for sale but there were no bidders & the sale was likewise adjourned. =

Notwithstanding the failure of the two attempts at sales. the Pro have to consider the propriety of offering for sale the farms of the Defts. and in aid of that Consideration. I suggest the following legal points —

As to Laurence Leary in my opinion the legal Estate is vested in the Trustees of the Deed of 14th August 1888. a copy of which has been furnished to me. and that the Sheriff could not sell under fifa against Laurence Leary. =

As to Nicholas Doyle. there is apparently no legal difficulty in offering the place for sale, except the want of bidders - a difficulty which has been illustrated by the failure of the previous Sales. & unless the Gdns are pre-pared to buy & work the farm themselves, I would not advise to offer it for Sale. = As to Martin Murphy. I have called for & obtained a copy of the Deed of the 14th July 1894. & in my opinion, the legal Estate is vested in the Trustees of that Deed. = In reference to the Recent date of the Deed. no question of fraudelent Assignment can arise; as the lands were never vested in the Deft. having been part of the assets of his father deceased. & assigned to the Trustees by the Executor. = As to Bankruptcy the Cost & the chances of utter failure to realize any thing render such proceedings quite out of the question =

Copyright: Wexford County Archive

I feel my self at the End of my resources on the subject & accordingly I make this Report of what I have done pursuant to directions of July 5th 1894. to the Gdns requesting their future instructions. =

Ferns Dispensary District, ~~Dist.~~ In re Supply of Water to Ferns

The following was Reported - At a meeting of the Ferns Dy Co held the 22nd August 1894 -

We have considered the Local Govmt Board's letter stating that we had not given sufficient reason for altering the Existing Order in the case of the Ferns Water Works.

On full Consideration, We consider the reason given quite sufficient, as the present order will press unduly on Ferns, which is a small division, and the rates are very high - the water is for the poor & the supply of the National School, and the children who attend it come from the Outside of. Most of the Ratepayers have pumps & dont require Water =

We hope the L G Bd will agree to the proposed change & let the works be proceeded with

Two Charges against the late Clerk

Lamberts Sureties &c

The Clerk read along letter, addressed to the Local Board, meeting the charges made against him & as follows

Enniscorthy Union, August 31st, 1894.

SIR—Referring to the letters of the Local Government Board of July 11th, 1894—No 28372—and July 31st, 1894—No 30136—addressed to the "Presiding Chairman" of this board, as to certain alleged "neglect of duty" on my part in the matter of Ex-Poor-rate Collector Lambert—I beg to make the following statement, which I am prepared to substantiate on oath, if necessary. On April 30th, 1891, the "Rate-collectors' Abstract," showing rates collected and lodged, and outstanding, with the attendances of the collectors, &c, &c, was laid before the chairman (as is usual weekly). On its perusal the following order was made by Mr Flynn, the chairman (vide minute book, page 186):—"The clerk to write to the sureties of the rate-collectors that unless the rates are all collected by the 1st July next the board must instruct their solicitor to proceed against them." May I ask the Local Government Board to note how carefully this book was observed by Mr Flynn, the usual chairman, so as to elicit this order. Accordingly on May 9th, I sent out 24 letters to 24 sureties, embodying this order. I got one reply only, as follows:—"Enniscorthy, 26 h May, 1891. Dear Sir—In reply to your letter of 9th May, 1891, to sureties of rate-collectors, and addressed to Mr Matthew Doyle, Coolamain, Oylegate, I beg to inform you that Mr Doyle died s> far back as the 18th December, 1889. His representatives have sent me the letter with directions to acquaint you of the fact, in order that you may get a substitute as surety.—Yours truly, P J O'FLAHERTY, per A O'B. D Keohler, Esq, Clerk to Guardians, Enniscorthy Union." On May 27th, Mr Flynn being chairman, I brought this letter, with other correspondence, before the board. When doing so, I remember most distinctly remarking that "I thought a surety could not retire in that way in the middle of a collection," and "that the proper time to do so would be before the issue of the new warrants for the collection of the new rates, etc." It will be seen that as a letter of withdrawal of responsibility, besides the inopportune time, there were two important omissions in it. It did not state the name of the collector from whom the withdrawal was made, nor the name of the party as "representative" of the deceased on whose behalf "in succession" it was sent in. The fact was, I did not then think, nor afterwards, till it was urged in view of the action by the board of guardians against Lambert's sureties, that it referred to Lambert or one of his sureties at all. I took it to refer to a collector, who yet remains one. This explains why, on its first being mentioned, I told a committee of the board I had no recollection whatever of such a letter as applying to Lambert, nor had I at the time, nor after, till I found it after a search amongst the board's documents; and read it in the light of Mr O'Flaherty's reference to it. The chairman made no order on this letter, nor did he initial it. —This has occasionally occurred at the board, apparently from an unwillingness on his part to appear to give any amount of sanction to the contents of a document. Mr O'Dempsey, solicitor to the board, has since then expressed an opinion with which many will agree, that it was fortunate no order was then made, as the chairman might unwillingly have made one which would have afterwards affected the proceedings against the three other sureties. —"This note of Mr O'Flaherty's, not being initialed by the chairman, was omitted from the 'minutes of proceedings,' not having 'passed the chair,' which I always took to be the correct course. It was 'open,' however, as always, to the chairman or any other guardian to have the omission inserted on the next board-day before the signing of minutes. I had not the remotest 'ulterior' object whatever of any kind in omitting it from the minutes. The allegation of the sureties since made as to their probable 'withdrawal' if it had been so included is worthless. The 'Press' take no notice of matters as to bonds or sureties transacted in committe, and unless I was ordered to do so by the board it would have been highly reprehensible on my part to have acquainted them of such a proceeding. The collection of the rate struck in January, 1891, being closed by all the collectors on December 6th, on December 31st (minute book 331), preparatory to the issue of the new warrants, I brought the bonds of the collectors before the board, as I do annually. I read out each name, one by one, and asked the usual queries—'if all were alive yet,' and 'if considered yet solvent and sufficient?' &c. No objection was raised to any of the names, although three out of the four guardians interested in Lambert's collection were present. Each bond was initialled by the chairman, Mr Johnson, D V C, and I made the following entry in the minute book (page 332):—'Clerk's report—The clerk submitted the bonds of the collectors of poor-rate to the board for approval of the sureties mentioned therein, as usual once a year. The board approved of all mentioned and saw no necessity for any change. Now, sir, as to my having kept the board in 'ignorance' as to the state of Lambert's collection, I must trouble the Local Government Board with details to show such was not the case. It is superfluous almost to state that on page 3 of each week's copy of the minutes, the amount of rates collected and lodged by each collector up to the previous Saturday is given with the amount out-standing against his name. The minutes are read aloud each board day and signed by the chairman as correct. The rate-collectors' abstract book giving fuller particulars is duly laid before the board and duly initiall d by the chairman. As it happens the entry of Lambert's accounts is the lowest on the page, and from January 30th, '92, up to November 26th, '92, the initials of the chairman of the day are placed within one cubic inch below the statement of the amount outstanding on his collection, and the date of his last collection. From the 8th October till 3rd December, 1892, the entry of 'September 29th, is given eight distinct times, as the date of his last presentation of his accounts to the clerk. In addition to these reports, on November 3rd I made a separate and independent 'clerk's report' of the state of the collection, which was initialled by the chairman, and by his directions read aloud to the board. I yet hold this and can produce it. It runs as follows—'State of collection for week ending 29th Oct. Daniel M'Donald closed on 25th August, John Walsh closed on 21st September, Tim Nolan lodged nothing since 28th September (outstanding, £285), Patrick Fortune lodged nothing since 20th October (outstanding, £207), Edward Somers lodged nothing since 29th September (outstanding, £16), Matty Doyle lodged nothing since 24 h September (outstanding, £225), Pat Lambert lodged nothing since 29th September (outstanding, £330). Outstanding rates with five collectors, £1,063.' No order was made on this. On November 10th I again in a 'clerk's report' stated the following, which was read aloud and initialled by the chairman, and which I also yet hold:—'Rates outstanding: Tim Nolan, £170; P Fortune, £230; Matty Doyle, £225; Pat Lambert, £330; Edward Somers, £16. To al, £971.' No order was made on this. Again on N vemb r 25th I made a 'clerk's report' as follows, also in my possession:—'Rates outstanding: Tim Nolan, £166 5s 7d; P Fortune, £150 6s 9d; Edward Somers, £16 3s 10d; Matty Doyle, £131 5s 4d; Pat Lambert, £330 3s 7d Total, £794 5s 1d. No report from rent collectors in accordance with the order of this board, passed on 4th August, 1892, as to the state of the houses in their respective districts, and also the state of the collection.' It was ordered on this:—'The rent collectors to send in written reports as ordered.' No order was made on the first and most important part of this report. To further strengthen my position, that the board were fully aware of the state of things existing, allow me to quote a proof conclusive, though non-official. In THE ENNISCORTHY GUARDIAN of November 5th—a paper which locally reports 'union' news very fully and carefully—after giving my report on the state of the collection for week ending 29th October, as above, it adds—'The Chairman (Mr Flynn)—I must remark that these collectors are four months behind the time they stipulated to close their collections. They stipulated to close on 1st July, and here five months have passed, and they have not closed yet. Clerk—It is quite ridiculous, certainly. Chairman—There certainly must be some means of coercing them to do ther duty.' No order was, however, made.

Postponed for consideration to 2 weeks

"Again, on October 22nd, 1892, the following appears in the same paper:—'The rate collection—The Local Government Board wrote in reference to the rate collection, pointing out that the guardians should call on the rate-collectors—Nolan, Fortune, Doyle, Lambert—to close their accounts without delay. In their respective districts sums of £285, £292, and £330 were outstanding. The Clerk said Fortune had lodged £82 that day. There was too much out. Mr Hayes—How much is outstanding altogether? Clerk—About £1,000. Mr Hayes—Oh, that is too much. Clerk—It is ridiculous. Mr Hayes—We should make some strong order on the matter. Ordered—That the collectors close without delay.' But even if I had neglected my duty in warning the board, the Local Government Board cautioned it repeatedly. On Aug 23rd, 1892, No 32,935, the following 'extract' appears addressed to this board, along with Mr Agnew's report (after inspection):—'As regards the financial condition of the union, it appears that the collection of rates is in a very backward state, a sum of £2,114 still remaining outstanding, although the period allowed for completing the collection expired last month. The greater part of this sum is outstanding in the districts of Collectors Nolan, Fortune, Lambert and Doyle, who should be required to close their accounts at once.' No order was made on this. In the face of all these reminders how can it be alleged with truth that the board was kept in ignorance of the state of Lambert's collection? With respect to my failing to bring before the guardians (as alleged) the letter of Lambert's sureties of September 7th, '93—'I beg to say that I was absent on leave on that date when it first came before the board. I was also absent on September 14th, when it was again presented.' On September 21st I made an explanation to the board, a copy of which I have sent forward lately to the Local Government Board, and I also made an entry on the minute book (page 474) as follows:—'Letter from sureties of Lambert, defaulting collector, read, asking for a sworn inquiry, &c., &c., &c. The board made no order on this.' With respect to the long catalogue of queries forwarded through this board's minutes, I beg most respectfully to submit that these charges ought to be made directly and precisely if made at all. I can then meet them and hold some one responsible for their issue. Some of these are untrue, some of them misleading, some of them have no bearing whatever on Lambert's case. They would seem to be 'scraped together' from every available source to frighten me if possible into submission to the proposal, 'to pay the amount involved and there will be peace.' This I cannot do with honour. I am innocent of any intention of reservation, or of double dealing on all these matters. I am asked why I did not 'suspect' Lambert in time? I might also be asked why I did not suspect Nolan with £285 out, Fortune with £292 out, Doyle with £225 out on September 29th. I knew him always to be a slow, stupid, incompetent collector, who ought never to have been appointed, although he brought such glowing testimonials to the board. I had no reason to suspect him of dishonesty, or his conduct in any way, although when he had gone away, I could hear enough about it as usual, after the event. He was always sober when here, and appeared free from any attempt at deceit. In an interview with him a couple of weeks previous to his departure, I warned him he would get into trouble if he did not lodge money soon, and he promised to do so. He urged the difficulty of getting money at the time as an excuse, and as the other collectors were urging the same plea, I was disarmed. I may ask why I never received the remotest hint from any guardians of three divisions concerned, or from any ratepayer or any resident in his district to be on the watch specially. More than that, had I been casually even asked by one of the guardians, or by a large ratepayer, 'had he accounted to me for his rates paid,' I would have discovered his forgery of the blocks of the rate receipts in time to have had him arrested for embezzlement, as I had done in Fullam's case in 1876. But the fact is, I would not even have discovered this, probably until now, only for my own private request to three gentlemen to entrust me with their receipts, as I suspected he had tried this stratagem. The ratepayers took the public board's appeal for receipts to be sent in so coolly that only a few were returned, and these unimportant. I had no authority to have Lambert arrested prior to his departure, or to have followed him afterwards without the express directions of the board. It would have been far pleasanter for me to have gone on a trip to America with a detective after him than to have been stupified over the details of his errors and his forgeries at home. The board did not order me to do so. I beg to say in conclusion, that I shall be prepared to explain any other allegations made against me if the Local Government Board think it necessary. I may be permitted, in self-defence, to say that all these attacks on me are only an 'after thought,' because the three sureties sanctioned by the board turn out to be insolent. Had they been able to pay, there would be none of all this against me, and their position, as insolent, is aggravated by the fact that they resisted from the outset the action of the board, thereby adding about £100 unnecessarily to the loss incurred by the union to the present. They now seek to throw odium and responsibility of all this on me, hoping some of these random charges will take effect, but I feel sure that the Local Government Board will give me that protection which I am conscious of deserving at their hands.—Your obedient servant,

"DANIEL KEOHLER," &c.

I Request the Board will appoint a Committee to see if a better arrangement could not be made as to the Superintendence and Management of the farm, as under present arrangement there is too much of my time taken from the house duties which must in part be neglected so long as I am to Superintend the farm which is far larger than that of any other Union I know of; I believe there is Enough of money paid Annually in Steward ship & Labour to have it properly managed, I may add, the present arrangement is the worst that could possibly be desired =

The Board proceeded to consider the Clerk's statement which had been read to the Board on Aug.t 30th and afterwards sent on with the Copy of the Minutes to the L.G.B.d. — Mr Smiotts proposed that 2 letters which had appeared from 2 Solicitors in the previous Saturdays Local papers be now read finish. The Clerk claimed aright to reply, &c. After some discussion, it was decided to hear both. The following were then read & Ordered to go on the Minutes.

TO THE EDITOR.

Offices, Parkton, September 6th, 1894.

DEAR SIR—In reference to the Clerk's statement, as printed in THE ENNISCORTHY GUARDIAN, that "Mr O'Dempsey, solicitor to the board, has since expressed an opinion that it was fortunate that no order was then made," I altogether deny that I ever expressed any such opinion, either to the Clerk or anyone else. This is what happened on the morning of the assizes when the trial was coming on: The Clerk, meeting me at the Railway Station, showed me, for the first time, the letter from Mr O'Flaherty. Of course we chatted about it, and, in the course of a casual talk, I remember saying that if the guardians had made an express order releasing Doyle it would probably be held to have in point of law released the others; but I never, even in talk, said anything so foolish as "that it was fortunate that the guardians did not make any order." Of course the letter at that late stage of the proceedings was immaterial. But when I read it it never occurred to me, nor was not then suggested by the Clerk, that there was any difficulty in identifying "Matthew Doyle, of Coolamain, Oylegate," mentioned in the letter, with the same person as "Matthew Doyle, Coolamain, Oylegate," to whom the Clerk had addressed his circular, to which the letter was a reply. There was only the one "Matthew Doyle, of Coolamain, Oylegate," and that was the surety of Lambert, to whom the Clerk had addressed his circular. No difficulty arose from the omission of Lambert's name then, and the Clerk did not then express any such difficulty. He now says he took it to refer to "another collector of that name," who still remains a collector. Matthew Doyle, Ballybuckley, Bree, is the only person of that name who either collects or is surety. I feel sure the Clerk will hardly ask the guardians to believe that he read the letters so carelessly, and so forgetful of his own circulars that he confounded Matthew Doyle, of Coolamain, Oylegate, with Matthew Doyle, of Ballybuckly, Bree. The key of all this confusion seems to me to be afforded where the Clerk says he remembers distinctly remarking that "he thought a surety could not retire in that way in the middle of a collection, and the proper time to do so would be before the issue of the new warrants for the collection of the new rates." That is to say, in the face of Mr O'Flaherty's letter, he took the dangerous course of forming a legal opinion of his own, opposed to the letter, and allowed the guardians to act on his opinion. This always appears very amiable in a public officer in apparently saving expense, but it is open to the censure of the old adage about a man who is his own lawyer. Well, but if this statement be true that the Clerk thought a "surety could not retire," and soforth, what becomes of the statement he now makes that he thought the letter referred to a collector, not to a surety. I need hardly say to anyone of the least intelligence that the omission to mention the name of the representative on whose behalf the letter was written was wholly immaterial. it was enough that the letter conveyed that the surety was dead. You will observe that this communication does not purport to be any exhaustive treatment of Mr Keohler's very remarkable statement. I have confined myself strictly to matters affecting myself personally in relation to this matter. I leave the other portion of the clerk's statement to be dealt with by those whose more immediate duty and interests they concern.—Yours truly,

THOS J O'DEMPSEY.

TO THE EDITOR.

DEAR SIR—Mr Keohler's statement to the Local Government Board, which appeared in your report of the proceedings of the Enniscorthy Board of Guardians in your issue of Saturday last, contains a reference to a letter from our office, dated 29th May, 1891. His remarks are of a wholly unjustifiable character, but as they could hardly mislead any attentive reader we should not have noticed them but that our client has requested us to clear up the matter so that there may not be a possibility of a mistake about it.

The letter in question was in reply to a letter dated 9th May, 1891, addressed by Mr Keohler to Matthew Doyle, who had been one of the sureties of Patrick Lambert, ex-poor-rate collector, and it notified to Mr Keohler that Matthew Doyle, of Coolamain, Oylegate, had died so far back as the 18th December, 1889.

Mr Keohler now alleges that "as a withdrawal besides the inopportune time there were two important omissions in it." To this we reply that there were no omissions in it, that the time was not inopportune, and that for the purpose for which it was written, viz, to put an end to all future liability on the part of the representatives of Mr Matthew Doyle, it was a perfectly effectual letter. In case of the death of a surety to a bond on which there is a continuing liability, the liability ceases by the death of the surety, on notice of such death being given. This notice our letter gave in clear and unmistakable terms, identifying the surety who was dead in the plainest manner. The first so called omission is that the letter did not mention Lambert's name. There might be some excuse for Mr Keohler complaining of this if it had been the opening of the correspondence, but it will be seen that the letter was in reply to, and referred in express terms to a letter of Mr Keohler's own, dated 9th May, 1891, to the sureties of rate-collectors, and addressed to Mr Matthew Doyle, of Coolamain, Oylegate, and it was therefore wholly unnecessary to name the collector. Surely it could not have reasonably been supposed that Mr Keohler would not have known, or could not have found out to what his own recent letter, or the circular sent out by him in the same month as our our reply, referred. If, with this clear reference to his own letter before him, Mr Keohler fell into the extraordinary mistake, as he now says, of thinking our letter had to do with some other case, it was certainly not our fault. Not only, however, did our letter refer to Mr Keohler's own letter or circular, but it gave the full name and address of the surety who had died, and as there was only one Matthew Doyle, of Coolamain, Oylegate, who was surety of a rate collector, it identified him so as one would think to preclude any possible doubt.

The second so-called omission is that our letter did not contain the names of the representatives of Matthew Doyle, but as Mr Keohler does not indicate any sort of necessity or reason for giving their names, and as it could in no way have affected either the validity of the notice or the action of the guardians, this second point of his requires no answer.

The most amusing thing, however, in Mr Keohler's statement is the remarkable process of reasoning by which he arrives at the conclusion that the time at which the letter was written was inopportune. It would appear that Mr Keohler told the guardians that he thought "a surety could not retire in that way in the middle of a collection, and that the proper time to do so would be before the issue of the new warthat the public will be disposed to elevate Mr Keohler to the position which he claims first, and we certainly object to be made responsible this way for his bad law. In conclusion, we have only to say that we discharged our duty to our clients by writing such a letter, as not only effectually protected them from liability, but was so clear as to save them from any danger of litigation, it being impossible in the face of such a letter that any solicitor should advise the guardians that they could safely venture to sue the representatives of Matthew Doyle.—Yours truly,

P J O'FLAHERTY, & SON.

Enniscorthy, 6th September, 1894.

ran's." Does Mr Keohler mean what his words imply, that it was highly irregular and contrary to the rules of the board for the surety to die in that way before the issue of the warrants? Or does he mean, if so he does not say it, that the notification of his death, in order to determine his representatives' liability, ought to have been deferred till the issue of the new warrants. If the latter be his meaning, this legal opinion of his, besides being couched in very inaccurate language, was, as might have been expected, wholly erroneous. This erroneous opinion of his is, however, the only reason he vouchsafes for his statement that the time of the letter was inopportune. We hardly suppose

The Clerk then read as follows—Mr Chairman—Before the board proceeds to consider my statement I wish to refer to two letters in Saturday's papers, lest if I left them unmentioned I might be prejudiced by my silence in the eyes of the board and the public. First, then, as to Mr O'Dempsey's—What I have done to bring down his wrath I cannot imagine. I regret very much he should write such a letter in such a tone and temper against me. He and I have worked harmoniously together for years past in union matters. We have never had the least "friction." We have mutually helped each other. I have served him when I might have acted otherwise. In fact it is highly improbable but that for me he would not be in the position he is now as union solicitor. Therefore I am the more grieved and amazed at his letter. How have I offended him? I repeated a statement made a year ago to the board, which he then, and since, and until now, allowed to go uncontradicted. Had he then told me not to repeat it, I would not have done so. I meant my quotation of his opinion as a compliment. The conversation to which I refer, took place in my office—not at the "Station in Wexford." The words which he used, described so exactly what might have occurred—"The Chairman might unwittingly have made an order, &c"—that it fastened itself on my memory, I did not give his opinion as a legal one. I said he "expressed an opinion." There is a great difference between a personal and a legal opinion, and no one would think of binding a lawyer to the former, if he choose to repudiate it. I am not concerned, therefore, to press this matter further, except to hope that Mr O'Dempsey will never say or do anything more "foolish," than what I have attributed to him. I have reason to complain, however, that not contenting himself with his denial, he unasked, unauthorised, and unprovoked, directly attacks me on the question at issue, which is, to say the least, unseemly conduct on the part of one union officer against another.

Now, as to the letter of Messrs. O'Flaherty and Son. This is a different matter; I expected this. I have been guilty of the sin of "presumption," and must be punished for daring to criticise a letter sent from their office. What was my statement? It has not been upset in the least, particularly by the half column of legal lore poured out on my devoted head. It was this: (Their letter)—"It did not state the name of the collector from whom the withdrawal was made, nor name of the party as representative of the deceased on whose behalf in succession it was sent in." Well, did it do so? I merely stated the bare fact—it did not. I did not impugn its validity as a legal document in any way. I cited the "omissions" to show there was nothing on the "face" of it to connect it necessarily with Lambert on its being read to the board. If Messrs. O'Flaherty and Son think that a solicitor's letter which does not give the name of the party for whom said solicitor acts on his behalf and withdraws "suretyship" from a man it does not name is a perfect document, why, in my ignorance as a mere "layman," I must submit, but I fancy the lay mind at large will agree with me that it is not above criticism thus. Should the "onus" be left on the recipient to find out whether the "Representatives of the deceased were brother, sister, uncle, aunt, son, nephew, grandmother, or grandfather —or all these together, or any of them" or in case the letter was addressed say, to Messrs Davis, or any other commercial firm employing 100 men, should it be left to them to find out from whom in their employment the withdrawal of "suretyship" was made. It is strange if so—I in my legal ignorance think it the "A.B.C." of solicitorship practise to mention both. I had no time to examine into this letter before reading it for the board. I had not been in my office for two months till that day, having just then narrowly escaped death from a violent attack of influenza. With an effort I went over to my office, unfortunately for myself, as it was the day for the consideration of the yearly tenders, and there was a press of business to be got through, amid the usual surroundings of "contract" day. After I read the letter I did not "form" or "give" any legal opinion about it, as Mr O'Dempsey states. I carefully avoided this, I said practically what I have stated, "that I thought a surety could not retire in the middle of a collection in this way," meaning that he ought not be released at that time by any action of the board. I had on my mind also at the time that the bond for a collector of rates bound the heirs, executors. administrator and assignees of the party signing it. The chairman evidently understood my meaning and declined to make any order. I did not press him to do so. It is not my duty. He could have done so had he wished. I admit candidly, however, that I thought he was quite right. He might so easily in the hurry and confusion of "contract" day have to use Mr O'Dempsey's happy phrase, "unwittingly" made an unwise or unsuitable order. My "bad law" has been sneered at. I am not aware of volunteering legal opinions at any time; nor did I on the occasion referred to—good or bad law—a variable quantity. A solicitor can always find good law to match his client, and the bad law is always at the other side. If Messrs O'Flaherty & Son and Mr O'Dempsey were in this matter on opposite sides they would tear each other's law into pieces in a short time. It is only a matter of purchase—a guinea or two could set them in motion against each other, with the best of law at both sides, but, as it happens, they are for once agreed to punish anyone who even appears to trespass on their sacred pivileges. I appeal, in conclusion, to the good sense of this board in the matter and to their sense of fair play. I have done nothing of which I am ashamed. I have never acted deceitfully or untruthfully towards this board, and after the full and exhaustive statement I have made I would be sorry if the board should adopt any resolution which would break up or affect the harmonious relationship which has existed for years, past between us. I should much prefer that this board should now end this matter, so far as I am concerned, rather than be forced to fall back on any other means of defending myself from these undeserved and unprovoked attacks upon me.

The Clerk then made the following Statement—

To this an Amendment was proposed by Dr Naughton & seconded by Adams as follows:

"That having heard the Clerks explanation we are of opinion, that it is unnecessary to proceed further in this matter, as against him. that a Sworn Inquiry is not necessary"

On a poll, the Amendment was carried by 15 votes to 11

Subsequently the following Notices of motion were handed in ——

"I give notice that on this day two weeks, I will move that the Resolution carried to day, against calling for a Sworn Inquiry into the cause of Ex collector Lamberts defalcations be Rescinded; and I shall then move a resolution thereon"

"I beg to give notice that I will this day fortnight, propose the following resolution - that in consequence of the serious losses suffered by this Union through defaulting Collectors and Securities, the Guardians request that a Sworn Inquiry be held to examine into the Circumstances under which they took place, and to report as to the best means to be taken to avoid similar occurrences in the future

Lamberts Sureties - Sworn Inquiry
Clerk's Statement on 13th Sept. 1894

Mr Keohler then read the following—Mr Chairman, before the board proceeds to consider my statement, I wish to refer to two letters in Saturday's papers, lest, if I left them unmentioned, I might be prejudiced by my silence in the eyes of the board and the public. First, then, as to Mr O'Dempsey's—what I have done to bring down his wrath I cannot imagine. I regret very much he should write such a letter in such a tone and temper against me. He and I have worked harmoniously together for years past in union matters. We have never had the least "friction." We have mutually helped each other. I have served him when I might have acted otherwise. In fact it is highly improbable but that for me he would not be in the position he is now as union solicitor. Therefore I am the more grieved and amazed at his letter. How have I offended him? I repeated a statement made a year ago to the board which he then and since has until now allowed to go uncontradicted. Had he then told me not to repeat it, I would not have done so. I meant my quotation of his opinion as a compliment. The conversation to which I refer took place in my office—not at the "station in Wexford." The word which he used described so exactly what might have occurred—"The Chairman might unwittingly have made an order, &c"—that it fastened itself on my memory. I did not give his opinion as a legal one. I said he "expressed an opinion." There is a great difference between a personal and a legal opinion, and no one would think of binding a lawyer to the former if he chose to repudiate it. I am not concerned to press this matter further, except to hope that Mr O'Dempsey will never say or do anything more "foolish" than what I have attributed to him. I have reason to complain, however, that not contenting himself with his denial, he, unasked, unauthorised, and unprovoked, directly attacks me on the question at issue, which is, to say the least, unseemly conduct on the part of one union officer against another. Now, as to the letter of Messrs O'Flaherty and Son, this is a different matter. I expected this. I have been guilty of the sin of "presumption," and must be punished for daring to criticise a letter sent from their office. What was my statement? It has not been upset in the least particular by the half column of legal lore poured out on my devoted head. It was this (their letter)—"It did not state the name of the collector from whom the withdrawal was made nor the name of the party as representative of the deceased on whose behalf in succession it was sent in." Well, did it do so? I merely stated the bare fact—it did not. I did not impugn its validity as a legal document in any way. I cited the "omissions" to show there was nothing on the "face" of it to connect it necessarily with Lambert, on its being read to the board. If Messrs O'Flaherty and Son think that a solicitor's letter which does not give the name of the party for whom said solicitor acts on his behalf, and withdraws "suretyship" from a man it does not name, is a perfect document, why, in my ignorance as a mere "layman," I must submit, but I fancy the lay mind at large will agree with me that it is not above criticism thus. Should the "onus" be left on the recipient to find out whether the "representatives" of the deceased were brother, sister, uncle, aunt, son, nephew, grandmother or grandfather—or all these together, or any of them; or in case the letter was addressed, say to Messrs Davis or any other commercial firm employing 100 men—should it be left to them to find out from whom in their employment the withdrawal of "suretyship" was made. It is strange if so—I in my legal ignorance think it the "A B C" of solicitorship practice to mention both. I had no time to examine into this letter before reading it for the board. I had not been in my office for two months till that day, having just then narrowly escaped death from a violent attack of influenza. With an effort I went over to my office, unfortunately for myself, as it was the day for the consideration of the yearly tenders, and there was a press of business to be got through, amid the usual surroundings of "contract" day. After I read the letter I did not "form" or "give" any legal opinion about it, as Mr O'Dempsey states. I carefully avoided this. I said practically what I have stated, "that I thought a surety could not retire in the middle of a collection in this way," meaning that he ought not be released at that time by any action of the board. I had in my mind also at the time that the bond for a collector of rates bound the heirs, executors, administrators and assignes of the party signing it. The chairman evidently understood my meaning, and declined to make any order. I did not press him to do so. It is not my duty. He could have done so had he wished. I admit candidly, however, that I thought he was quite right. He might so easily in the hurry and confusion of "contract" day, have to use Mr O'Dempsey's happy phrase, "unwittingly" made an unwise or unsuitable order. My bad law has been sneered at. I am not aware of volunteering legal opinions at any time, nor did I on the occasion referred —good or bad law—a variable quantity. A solicitor can always find good law to match his client, and the bad law is always at the other side. If Messrs O'Flaherty & Son and Mr O'Dempsey were in this matter on opposite sides they would tear each other's law into pieces in a short time. It is only a matter of purchase—a guinea or two could set them in motion against each other with the best of law at both sides, but as it happens they are for once agreed to punish anyone whoever appears to trespass on their sacred privileges. I appeal in conclusion to the good sense of this board in the matter, and to their sense of fair play. I have done nothing of which I am ashamed. I have never acted deceitfully or untruthfully towards this board, and after the full and exhaustive statement I have made, I would be sorry if the board should adopt any resolution which would break up or affect the harmonious relationship which has existed for years past between us. I should much prefer that this board should now end this matter, so far as I am concerned, rather than be forced to fall back on any other means of defending mysely from these undeserved and unprovoked attacks upon me. I preferred to face this rather than be guilty of the mean subterfuge of concealing its receipt. I have never deceived this board in any way since my connection with it, and I prefer to take the consequences of candour and openness rather than be guilty of deception or untruth, and whatever the result I will continue; I hope to do so. There was another omission about this letter of which I may now inform Messrs O'Flaherty & Son, as another act of presumption. It was, I believe, sent to me by ordinary postage unregistered. When I found it weeks after, I had stated that I had no recollection of it whatever. If I had simply put it in the fire its delivery to me could not have been traced. I got letters by three different postmen from three different deliveries, and without taking into account if it ever were posted or not, it would have been impossible to have tracked it to me.

In re Sworn Inquiry. Lamberts Defalcations. Statement of Mr Ennis 409

MR. SINNOTT AND THE CLERK—THE LAMBERT CASE

Mr Sinnott (at the conclusion of the board's proceedings)—Before you go, Mr Chairman, I want to say a few words here in reference to this unfortunate affair about ex-collector Lambert. Of course Mr Keohler appears to be doing his best to put backward the whole of this thing. I want to bring it on one way or another. If Mr Keohler can clear himself, so much the better; and in reference to it I have a statement here that cost me some time to go over it, and I will ask the clerk to read it for the board.

Chairman—Very well. Read it Mr Connolly. Mr Sinnott then handed in the following, which was read by Mr Connolly:—Mr Chairman, in consequence of the manner in which I was interrupted on last board-day by the clerk and his friends, brought in by circular for the occasion, I was prevented from replying verbally to Mr Keohler's statement made a fortnight before, so when I read the report of the portion of the proceedings published and missed therefrom some replies made by myself and my friends, in the midst of uproar and interruption from those from whom much better might have been expected, I considered it necessary to prepare this reply to Mr Keohler's statement, and request that it shall be placed on the minutes, although I contend that the proceedings of last Thursday were irregular, as my resolution of July 19th, passed unanimously by a large board, was not rescinded. Therefore, I am advised, it was out of order to take any amendment at all without a notice of motion being sent to each guardian to rescind my resolution of 19th July, which should have been done before an amendment could be proposed to it a fortnight after it being passed, to make the course clear, as until that is done the proceedings of last board-day, I submit, were irregular and can have no effect. According to the "General Regulations" as to the clerk's duties, if they have any meaning in them or are worth anything, clerks of unions are bound to act in compliance with them without an order from boards of guardians at all; if not it is time the poor-laws should be changed altogether. In accordance with Article 45, No 7 "General Regulations," clerks of unions are bound to examine the poor-rate collectors' collecting book, rate receipt check book, and rate receipt abstracts once at least in each fortnight. Has Mr Keohler ever examined Lambert's books at all from September 29th, 1892, to December 1st, 1892, when he reported to the board that he (Lambert) was gone with £330, after being allowed by the clerk to remain away nine weeks without even presenting a single one of his books for examination, and this at a time when he should be receiving rates without much trouble, it being the only time of the year that money would be likely to be plenty with country people? According to Article 45, No 8 General Regulations, it states—"And in case any collector shall neglect to attend for such examination of his books, or fail to produce his accounts—once at least each fortnight—the clerk is bound to record such omission on the minutes of the guardians at their next meeting." Has Mr Keohler done that? If so let him produce the minutes and show where such an entry appears. When the chairman (as the clerk states) initialled that special report of the clerk, which he states he made on the 3rd November, 1892, showing in all £1,063 outstanding with five collectors, why was not that special report recorded on the minutes, so as to bring it under the notice of the Local Government Board, and also why was not the chairman's important statement in connection therewith, which the clerk states appeared in THE GUARDIAN newspaper of November 5th, '92, recorded on the minutes for the information of the Local Government Board, and to come under the guardians' notice at their next meeting during the reading of said minutes? According to the collectors' bonds in the clerk's own possession, each collector was bound to close within six months from the date he received his warrant; and when they did not do so, and then did not ask the guardians for a prolongation of the time, and consequently were not allowed it, I submit the clerk was bound under such circumstances to observe the lawful orders of the board in accordance with the regulations as to his duties by reporting specially once at least each fortnight, and recording said report on the minutes for the information of the Local Government Board. On November 10th, 1892, he states:—"I again, in a clerk's report, stated the following, which was read aloud and initialled by the chairman, and which I also yet hold:—'Rates outstanding—Tim Nolan, £170; P. Fortune, £230; Matty Doyle, £225; Pat Lambert, £330; Edward Somers, £16. Total, £971. No order was made on this.'" But why was not this report put on the minutes and it a clerk's report and initialled by the chairman, so that it would come under the notice of the Local Government Board and the guardians at their next meeting? Mr. Keohler states that the reason why he did not put Mr. O'Flaherty's letter on the minutes was because the chairman did not initial it; but here is his own special report in reference to rates outstanding, initialled by the chairman, and which he states he yet holds, but which he neglected to put on the minutes. See the recklessness and inconsistency of his statements, and the subterfuges resorted to as an excuse for the grossest negligence. Again the clerk states—"On November 25th I made a clerk's report as follows, also in my possession:—'Rates outstanding—Tim Nolan, £166 5s 7d; Pat Fortune, £150 6s 9d; Edward Somers, £16 3s 10d; Matty Doyle, £131 5s 4d; Patrick Lambert £330 3s 7d. Total, £794 5s 1d.' No report from rent-collectors in accordance with the order of this board, passed on 4th August, 1892, as to the state of the houses in their respective districts, and also the state of the collection. It was ordered on this—the rent-collectors to send in written reports as ordered. No order was made on the first and most important part of this report." He states on November 25th that he made a clerk's report, which is also in his possession; but is it on the minutes? If so, why does he state that he still holds it in his possession, which gives rise to suspicion that it is not on the minutes. However, if it is, let it be produced. He states—"I'd still further strengthen my position that the board were fully aware of the state of things existing. Allow me (he says) to quote a proof conclusive, though non-official. In THE ENNISCORTHY GUARDIAN of November 5th—a paper which locally reports Union news very fully and carefully—after giving my report on the state of the collection for week ending 29th October, it adds:—'The Chairman (Mr Flynn) said—I must remark that these collectors are four months behind the time they stipulated to close their collections. They stipulated to close on 1st July, etc. Clerk—It is quite ridiculous certainly.' No order was, however, made." Let us examine all these inconsistencies, evasions, and dodges. The clerk states he made a report for week ending 29th October, which he holds, and can produce (see first and second pages of this statement as to the chairman's "important statements" on that occasion), which he (clerk), either through carelessness or negligence, omitted to place on the minutes in reply to his own report, for the information of the Local Government Board and guardians at their next meeting, and, in fact, seems to have totally forgotten what the chairman stated on 5th November, 1892, until he hunted up the pages of THE ENNISCORTHY GUARDIAN a few weeks ago when preparing his elaborate statement to dumbfound illiterate guardians; but before this is over he and his friends will find the guardians more enlightened than they think. Just imagine him making a special report, and the chairman making a very short but pointed and important statement in reply, and he, the clerk, adding—"It is quite ridiculous certainly," still not one syllable of the chairman's statement appears to be on the minutes for the information of the Local Government Board, and as a reminder to the guardians at their next meeting. However, it appears that nearly all the collectors took notice of the chairman's remark in the papers as they nearly all reduced outstanding arrears to nearly half between 29th September and 25th November, except Lambert, who did not reduce his arrears one penny. And although the clerk states that he "knew him always to be a slow, stupid, and incompetent collector," he never thought it worth his while to direct the attention of the board to the fact that, although all the other collectors referred to by him had lodged several times between 29th September and 25th November, and reduced the arrears of rates outstanding on 29th September to about half the amount against 25th November following, yet that this slow, stupid, and incompetent collector, which Mr Keohler states he always knew Lambert to be, did not reduce the £330 outstanding on 29th September, '92, by one single penny! Still he, the clerk, did not record on the minutes his (Lambert's) omission to come in with his books to be examined at least once every fortnight, in accordance with Art 45, No 7 and 8 General Regulations as to Clerk's duties, although he states that on 22nd October, 1892—"the following appears in the same paper:—'The Rate Collection.—The Local Government Board wrote in reference thereto, pointing out that the guardians should call on the rate collectors, Nolan, Fortune, Doyle, and Lambert, to close their accounts without delay. In their respective districts sums of £285, £292, and £330 were outstanding. The Clerk stated Fortune had lodged £82 that day. There was too much out, Mr Hayes—How much is outstanding altogether? Clerk—About £1 000. Mr Hayes—Oh, that is too much. Clerk—It is ridiculous. Mr Hayes—We should make some strong order on the matter. Ordered—That the collectors close without delay." This order, it appears, was made on 20th October, 1892. Did the Clerk ever report during nine weeks that all the other collectors were complying with it, but that Lambert was not? Clerk states he is asked why he did suspect Lambert in time, and that he might as well be asked why he did not suspect N with £285 out; Fortune, £292; Doyle, £225, out the 29th September. Well, I believe Nolan collects for ten divisions which cover a large area of country. He is a collector of nearly twenty ye standing—a smart, intelligent man—and also a independent man himself, good enough for the amount of his bond. In addition to that, his sur are all well known to be highly respectable, inde dent men, and he reduced the arrears of £285 standing on the 29th September to about one-thi that amount on 1st December. So it is an insult compare such a man as Tim Nolan with such a sl stupid, and incompetent collector as Mr Keoh states he always knew Lambert to be; and the glowi testimonials he brought to the board were nothing the verbal characters given him by one of Keohler's best friends, who did his best to have hi elected for a relieving-officer as well as a rate-collect The Clerk asks why he did not suspect Doyle wi £225 out on 29th September, 1892, but Matty Doy holds over 40 acres of land himself, is well off, and a collector of over twenty years' standing; and the are few more intelligent men of his class. Besid his sureties are well known to be independent m and, although he is noted for never closing his coll tion early, still he reduced the £225 arrears outstan ing on 29th September to about £80 on 1st Decemb so he is not to be compared to that slow, stupid, inc petent collector, which Mr Keohler states he alw knew Lambert to be. Again, the clerk asked wh did not suspect Fortune with £292. Well, t were several reasons why he might not suspect F tune; but, after all, Fortune reduced the £292 standing on 29th September, 1892, to £96 on December, and the fact of seeing so much careless and negligence displayed in Lambert's case may tempted him (Fortune) to follow his example, altho the amount was small compared to Lambert's. regards the circumstances of Lambert's sureties would be impossible for any guardian to know h men in a large division like Ballyhuskard w situated. In a large division like Ballynuskard, guardians at the time Lambert was appointed li from four to eight miles from Lambert's sureties, the only way of knowing anything about them wo be by a reference to the rate book, as I understa Mr Kennedy was in the habit of doing. Had t been done it would have been seen that all Lambe sureties were small farmers, except Matthew Do of Coolamain. With regard to the sureties resist the action of the board: Four men sign a bond gether, and in presence of each other, in a solicit office in 1888. One of those sureties dies in 1889, the heir of the deceased surety remains as surety about two years, after which, in reply to a letter f the clerk of the union, he gets his solicitor to write said clerk signifying his intention of withdrawi from remaining surety, and recommending a n surety to be got in his place. This is not made kno to either the guardians or the other sureties u the collector quits the country, leaving about £ unaccounted for. As to the clerk's excuses and s terfuges in reference to the receipt of Mr O'Flahert letter of 26th May, 1891, and his misunderstandi about it—I refer to Mr O'Flaherty's lette of September, inst, as on the minutes of the board guardians of the 13th, and also to Mr O'Dempse letter of same date, which is also on the minutes. 21st September, 1893, after Lambert's sureties writi to the board, Mr Keohler stated that he told a co mittee of the board of guardians which met in F 1893, that he had no recollection of ever having ceived such a letter. Mr O'Dempsey was then abo commencing proceedings against the sureties, a during the time he was preparing the case for coun he had, of course, several consultations with M Keohler from February to July, 1893. And duri all that time Mr Keohler had no recollection of ha ing received such a letter, and, even when M O'Dempsey learned from Mr O'Flaherty himse that such a letter was sent to the clerk of union, still Mr Keohler denied having knowledge of ever having received it u the morning he was going down in train to the trial to Wexford when it was t late! And after all that h now, in September, 189 states that he remembers distinctly bringing th same letter before the board on 27th May, '91, a that the chairman would make no order on it and d not initial it. The chairman insists he never saw t letter or heard it read before, and notwithstandi that there was a very large board on 27th May, '9 none of the guardians present on that day heard an thing about such a letter. If all the clerk said occu red between himself and the chairman in reference t said letter—the clerk stating that "he thought surety could not retire in that way in the middle of collection, and that the proper time to do so would before the issue of the new warrants for the collecti of the new rates, &c"—how could all this discussion reference to that letter have escaped the reporters Still nothing has appeared about it in any of t papers.

Mr Sinnott's statement (Cont'd)

He states that the collection of the rate struck in January, 1891, being closed by all the collectors on December 6th, and on Decembor 31st, preparatory to the issue of the new warrants, he brought the bonds of the collectors before the board, as he does annually, and read out each name one by one, and asked the usual queries—if all were alive yet, and if considered yet solvent and sufficient, &c. "No objections were raised to any of the names, although three out of the four guardians interested in Lambert's collection were present." Mr Keohler, clerk of the union, wrote to Matthew Doyle, Coolamain, Oylegate, on May 9th, 1891, in reference to the backward state of Lambert's collection, for whom (Lambert) the said Matthew Doyle, Coolamain, was a surety; and on 26th May, 1891, Mr Keohler received a letter from Mr O'Flaherty as follows:—"Enniscorthy, May 26th, 1891—Dear Sir—In reply to your letter of the 9th May, 1891, to sureties of rate-collector, and addressed to Mr Matthew Doyle, Coolamain, Oylegate, I beg to inform you that Mr Doyle died as far back as 18th December, 1889. His representatives have sent me the letter with directions to acquaint you of the fact, in order that you may get a substitute as surety.—Yours truly, P J O'Flaherty, per A O B." Why did not Mr Keohler on 31st December, 1891 (seven months after receiving that letter, when he was reading out each name on all the collector's bonds so particularly, as he says himself, and questioning the guardians in reference to each name—as to whether all were alive, solvent or insolvent, &c,) then not state to the board that he received a letter seven months ago from Mr O'Flaherty that Matthew Doyle, Coolamain, Oylegate (one of Lambert's sureties), died the 18th December, 1889. If Mr Keohler himself with that letter in his possession from May 26th to December 31st, 1891, forgot all about it so far that he was prepared to swear from February, 1893, to July, 1893, that he had no knowledge whatever of ever having received such a letter, how can he now in September, 1894, expect to be believed when he states that he has a distinct recollection of having brought that letter before the board the day after he receiving it, and that the chairman refused to initial it. The chairman emphatically denies having ever seen it. Not a single member of the board on 27th May, 1891, out of over 20 present, remember having heard a word about any such letter, although the discussion between Mr Keohler and the chairman (as detailed by the clerk) should have been a somewhat prolonged one. Still, strange to say, if it took place it escaped the reporters as well as the guardians present, which is very unlikely and quite unusual. But coupling the foregoing facts with the following statement made by the clerk on the 13th September, 1894, it sounds very queer as coming from a public officer; and although it is not to his credit in the interest of the public, it cannot be passed unnoticed. Mr Keohler states at the close of his last explanation on the 13th inst:—"There was another omission about this letter of which I may now inform Messrs. O'Flaherty and Son as another act of presumption. It was (he says) I believe sent to me by ordinary postage unregistered. When I found it weeks after I had stated that I had no recollection of it whatever. If I had put it in the fire its delivery to me could not have been traced. I got letters by three different postmen from three different deliveries, and without taking into account if it ever were posted or not, it would have been impossible to have tracked it to me." The idea of a public officer stating publicly that if he had put an important letter from a solicitor in the fire, it would have been impossible to trace or track its delivery to him because it was not registered is something to alarm the public as well as the guardians. I now submit that I have made out a case for a sworn inquiry into the subject matter of the resolution of the 19th July, which has not yet been rescinded. The chairman stated on the 13th inst. "that Mr. Keohler said himself he was anxious for an inquiry." The clerk answered—"You did not hear me say that." How is this to be reconciled with the clerk's public statement on the 21st September, 1893:—"I have not the least objection to an inquiry—in fact, I would rather meet the inspector of the Local Government Board and explain to him rather than the public, because he would understand how things stand, for he is quite familar with it"—accompanied by the following threats evidently for the purpose of deterring guardians sent here by the ratepayers at an inconvenience and expense from acting in accordance with their conscientious convictions, so as to protect the interests of those that are sent here to represent. Mr. Keohler publicly stated on that occasion—"You must charge me with something I am not going to charge myself. You or some other guardian must charge me, and I will hold you responsible. It is well that guardians should know that this place is not privileged, and bear it in mind. It is not like the House of Commons, where you can say anything you like about anybody, and not be held responsible. I beg to warn you that there is no such privilege here, and if there is a sworn investigation I will answer nothing until I am charged. Let me see the man that will charge me, and I will hold him responsible." I wonder have the Local Government Board ever seen this? It is the opinion of those who know the difference that such a threat coming from an officer to his superiors, deserves the strongest vote of censure and want of confidence in the officer making such a threat. It would be interesting to know if the chairman initialled the clerk's last statement, as it is on the minutes.—(Signed), John Sinnott, P.L.G.

Stating that "in reference to the charges preferred against the Clerk of the Union in connection with the defalcation of Ex Collector Lambert."

"They are of Opinion that no advantage would result from holding a sworn Inquiry - as the facts appear to be fully disclosed in the papers &c. &c,

The Clerk of the Union should have been careful to call the particular attention of the Guardians to the state of Lambert's Collection" &c. &c.

at the same time the L.G.B. cannot hold the Guardians free from responsibility in the matter, as it was clearly incumbent on them to insist on a proper performance of their duties by the Collectors, and to take care that only solvent persons were accepted as Sureties for such Officers.

after the reading of this letter the Chairman asked Mr Linnott "if he persisted in "his motion to rescind the former "resolution of the Board. —

Mr Linnott persisted & moved

"That the resolution carried on the 13th Sept. against calling for a Sworn Inquiry into the Cause of Ex Collector Lambert's defalca- -tions be rescinded, and that Referring to the resolution of the Guardians of July 17th 1894. the Sons repeat their request to the Lds to Grant a Sworn Inquiry into the matters therein referred to."

This was Seconded by Mr Morrogh

Flour Contract &c

A letter was read from W. Matthew Ryan & Whose tender for above and Oatmeal & Ind. M. had not been accepted on the previous Boarday stating that he sent in a sample of Fallow Oatmeal @ 24/. ℔ 16 Stone and a Sample of Davis Broth. granulated Ind meal @ 12/. ℔ 16 A. Hor the same Ind meal Sw. & Soft @ 13/3 ℔ 16 A. was accepted.

The Board made no order on this letter.

After some discussion on the taking of the Tenders in general at the last Boarday the following was put forward and adopted. Proposed by John Smith Seconded by Pat. Kernaghan.

"That the Local Government Board be asked to say if an advertisement has been issued by order of the guardians, in compliance with a resolution carried by a large majority for best baker's flour. Can a third quality be accepted? And if the advertisement did not appear in the papers till 22nd September, could the contract be disposed of on 27th, five days after? If so, what is the meaning of Article 18? It has been the usual custom to read all the correspondence, master's report, &c., immediately after the minutes being read, and leave the consideration of contracts till all the guardians assembled. Was it proper, then, for nine out of twenty-four to force the consideration of a contract for £400 against the chairman's wishes the moment the minutes were read, and before the Local Government Board's letters and other correspondence were disposed of in the usual way, and thereby deprive the remaining fifteen guardians, who did not happen to be in at the time, of having a voice in the matter of such a large expenditure."

Contracts for flour &c

Informality as to advt for Tenders &c

Letter read 10th Oct '94 41.183

which had been postponed from Oct 11th after a short discussion Mr J Sinnott handed in the following notice of motion

"I give Notice, that as a Resolution, propoeed by me, and seconded by Mr. Fortune, was adopted—by 16 votes to 9—on the 13th September, as the Minutes of that date should specify: 'That the best Baker's Flour of Home Manufacture be advertised for,' in consequence of so much Bread made from the Flour used at present being unfit for use by aged and infirm people and sick inmates, when a day or two old, which then becomes a serious loss owing to the waste that must take place under the circumstances; and that it was both irregular and illegal for Tenders for a third quality of Flour—not a standard brand—to be considered and accepted hurriedly, when only about one-third of the guardians present on the occasion had assembled, and also before all the letters of the Local Government Board were read and considered according to Article 14, No. 9; and that although the advertisement was ordered on the 13th Sept. to be inserted in the papers, it did not appear till the 22nd, and the Contract was considered and accepted in undue and indecent haste, against the protests of the Chairman, on the 27th, so that it was only 5 days before the public instead of 10, which it should be according to Article 18 and the Local Government Board's letter of the 10th inst. Therefore, as several intending Contractors were both misled and deceived by the tactics adopted, I will move, on this day two weeks, that the Contracts for Flour, Oatmeal, and Indian Meal, which was irregularly and illegally accepted in a hurry by a small section of the Board on the 27th September, be rescinded, and re-advertised in accordance with the Guardians' resolution of the 13th September, so as to give all the Representatives of the Ratepayers an opportunity of having a voice in the expenditure of £400 of their money."—JOHN SINNOTT, P.L.G.

In Re
Flour Contracts

Notice of Motion to Rescind Same

The following was read from Mr O'Dempsey solicitor - to whom the matter had been submitted for his opinion -

Mr T. J. O'Dempsey, solicitor, wrote—"In reference to the pending notice of motion of 18th October, referred to me by the guardians for my legal advice, I have carefully considered the statute and regulations bearing upon the matter and I am of opinion that it is not legally competant for the guardians to rescind the flour contracts of 27th September last on any of the grounds suggested in the notice of motion. The first ground is that there was a variance between the advertisement and the tenders. I have not seen on the minutes the resolution referred to in the notice of motion, but I have seen the advertisement which asked for "Best Flour of Home Manufacture." All the tenders seem to be open to much verbal criticism, but the time to have discussed them was at the meeting at which they were considered. They do not on the face of them contravene any statutory regulation, and the guardians having entered into the contracts must now be held to have waived any supposed irregularities in the tenders, and neither they nor the Local Government Board have any power to reconsider the contracts on that ground. The second ground is that this particular business was illegally taken out of the order prescribed by the regulations and in the absence of a considerable number of the guardians who subsequently attended. By Section 92 of the First Irish Poor Law Relief Act it is enacted that any contract "which shall not be made and entered into in conformity with the order of the Commissioners or otherwise sanctioned by them, shall be voidable, and if the said Commissioners so direct shall be null and void." The general order of the 18th December, 1882, article 14, prescribes the order of proceedings at the meeting of the guardians, and this class of business would seem to come under the 12th heading in that article. The article provides that no business is to be taken out of the order there laid down, unless all the guardians present concur therein. If, as stated, this business were taken before any of the preceding eleven classes of business, including the reading and consideration of the letters of the Local Government Board, it would be altogether illegal to take it unless with the unanimous concurrence of all the guardians present. It appears that the Chairman in the present instance objected. A motion to give the matter precedence was pressed upon him; on his properly refusing to receive it a threat was made to remove him from the chair, and ultimately the acceptance of the tenders was carried by these proceedings. In my opinion, taking this business out of its order without the unanimous concurrence of the guardians present was wholly illegal and contrary to the plain words of the regulation, and that the contracts are liable to be set aside on that ground. The third ground is that although the advertisement appeared only in the papers of the 22nd of September, the contracts were accepted on the 27th September, less than ten days from the insertion of the advertisement, contrary to Article 18 of the General Order of 18th January, 1882. I assume that the dates are correctly stated in the notice of motion, and that, therefore, there has been a non-compliance with Article 18, and in my opinion the contracts may be set aside on that ground also. The regulations, being statutory, are binding on the contractors as well as the guardians. But I am also of opinion that the statute, on the true construction, confines to the Commissioners (now the Local Government Board) the exclusive jurisdiction and discretion of deciding whether these "voidable" contracts are to be declared "void" on either or both grounds, or are to be sanctioned notwithstanding the non-conformity; and that the guardians have no jurisdiction to determine that question. The only course open to the guardians, if the contracts have not been already sanctioned, would be to pass a resolution reciting the circumstances as set out in the notice of motion, and requesting the Local Government Board to declare the contracts void. Until the Local Government Board do this I would advise the guardians not to re-advertise for any supplies with which these contracts are concerned."

after the reading of this, a long discussion ensued and finally Mr Dimott waived his right to move the notice of motion handed in on Octr 18th (the consideration of which has been postponed on Novr 1st till the 15th) Instead of doing so he moved the following which was seconded by Mr Patrick Kernagh.

Over

"That Mr O Dempsey's letter go on the minutes, and that the L.G. Board be asked for their opinion on it, and that my notice of motion as to these Contracts be postponed for 2 weeks."

To this an Amendment was moved by J. Houghton & Seconded by T. Whelan &

"That as this Board on the 2nd Sept. unanimously accepted the Tender of Mr Byrne to supply Messrs Davis Bros "CC" Standard flour, to the Workhouse, and Mr Joyce's Tender for Oatmeal and Indian meal was accepted same day, We Consider the attempt now made to cancel these Contracts most unjust and unprecedented, and we therefore confirm our decision of above date." =

On a poll this amendment was lost by 6 votes to 7. and Mr Sinnott's proposal adopted.

That having full confidence in the Inspector of the Local Government Board, we think such action quite unnecessary, and we ask the L.G. Board not to sanction any outlay of the General Rates of the Union, as may be incurred by such a proceeding"

The Chairman, Mr Flynn, declined to put this to the Board, on the ground that it reversed the resolution passed on the 8th inst, without due notice & a Notice was then handed in by Mr Houghton D.P.
