Half of the above named Cesspayers or such smaller number as shall answer to their names when drawn, to be associated with the justices at the respective Presenting Session.

Ordered—That the sum of £59 10s. presented at Spring Assizes, 1858, to Joseph Parslow (see No. 5 Bantry, in abstract of Spring 1858), be paid to James Gallagher, on the work being executed by consent of said Joseph Parslow.

Ordered—We accept the proposal of James Anglin, for inserting in the Wexford Herald Newspaper for one year the advertisements of the County Offices, for the sum of £5. 6 and 7 W 4, c 116, s 142.

Ordered—That a memorial from this Grand Jury be forwarded to the Government in favour of having Wexford county constituted a separate Lunatic District.

Ordered—That the Committee which was appointed at Spring Assizes, 1858, for the purpose of investigating the matters relating to the new free bridge, be a standing committee until next Assizes.

The Trustees of the Wexford Free Bridge think it right to submit to the Grand Jury the following report of their proceedings.

Much delay has been occasioned in carrying forward the work connected with the bridge by the litigation set on foot by parties who considered their interests adversely affected by the project.

Having failed, after repeated applications, in obtaining payment from the Wexford Harbour Embankment Company, of the instalments due by the Company to the Trustees, the latter were reluctantly obliged to have recourse to a distress, the remedy provided by the statutes under which they act.

The company instituted a replevin suit, alleging that the powers of the Trustees had expired. The unanimous decision of the Court of Exchequer was given, with costs, in favour of the Trustees.

No. £ s. d.

5639 3 3 Brought forward

The Harbour Embankment Company have appealed against this decision to the Court of Error. There does not appear to be any well founded ground for believing that the decision of the Court of Exchequer will be reversed, and, under legal advice, the Trustees, after application made for payment, have issued a warrant to distrain for the further sum of £500, the amount of two instalments since accrued due.

A suit in Chancery was instituted against the Trustees in the name of the Attorney-General at the relation of one Thomas Murphy, a ratepayer of the County, praying relief (among other things) in respect of a sum of £1600, alleged to have been levied off the County in excess of what was provided by the Acts of Parliament regulating the powers of the Trustees.

The question of this £1600, levied by the County Treasurer, by virtue of a Presentment made under an erroneously worded clause of the amended Act of 1851 was brought by the Trustees before a committee of the Grand Jury at Spring Assizes, 1858.

That Grand Jury, while professing themselves unable to determine the question of considerable legal nicety, involved in the construction of the two Acts of Parliament, of 1847 and 1851, strongly recommended that this sum should, if possible, be applied by the Trustees to the building of the Bridge.

The Master of the Rolls has decided that, without attaching any blame to the Grand Jury who presented the sum, or the Trustees who received it from the County Treasurer, it was not, on strict construction of the present Acts, available to the Trustees, and could not be applied to the Building of the Bridge without the sanction of the Legislature.

Having expressed his opinion, that the petition was not a bona fide one, he referred it to the discretion of the Attorney-General, in whose name the suit had been instituted, whether any account should be directed against the Trustees; and that officer, on a full hearing and consideration of the case, decided that no further steps should be taken in the matter for a period of eighteen months, to give time for the Trustees, and the County, to adopt whatever course might be deemed most conducive to the effectual completion of the undertaking.

The Trustees, in spite of the obstacles thrown in their way, have continued to carry out the duties imposed on them.

Having been defeated by the opposition in Parliament of the Wexford Harbour Embankment Company in obtaining the Bill they sought, (under the sanction of successive Grand Juries) which would have given the county a Bridge wholly of Iron they have contracted for the erection of a Bridge supported on wooden piles, and composed of Iron in the super structure, as far as the means at their disposal would allow of.

No. £ s. d.

After some delay in the shipment of the timber, the Trustees are able to state that it has arrived.

That a large quantity for piles and beams has been conveyed to the site of the Bridge. That the contractors are engaged in preparing the machinery for driving the piles, and in making the iron plates for the flooring, part of which is already cast.

The Engineer confidently expects that they will have commenced driving the piles within a fortnight from the present date, and that all the piles will be driven within about four months.

To ensure the perfect construction of this great County work, the Trustees suggest that the Grand Jury should exercise their powers under the 43d section of the Grand Jury Act, and authorise the County Surveyor to appoint an additional assistant, in order that a constant and effectual supervision may be maintained over the works while in progress. Such superintendence would be specially necessary during the driving of the piles. The course has been adopted hitherto in county works of importance, such as the Bridges of Carrigmannon and Corbally, and would be proportionately more essential in the present case, on account of the magnitude of the work, and the consequent importance of its being perfectly carried out in all its details.

In conclusion the Trustees would ask the Grand Jury to appoint auditors of their accounts, as provided by the Act of Parliament.

Ordered—That the Report of Wexford Free Bridge Trustees be received. That the sanction of the Grand Jury be given to an application to Parliament for an Act to carry out the propositions contained in said report. And that the Solicitor for the Grand Jury, give his services to the Trustees in preparing a bill for such purposes.

REPORT:

"The Trustees under the Wexford Free Bridge Act beg to lay before the Grand Jury the necessity for an Act of Parliament being obtained as suggested by the Master of the Rolls in his judgment in the case of "Murphy v. LeHunte and others," to place at their disposal for the purpose of building the Bridge the sum of £1,600 decreed to have been irregularly levied under the Acts of 1847 and 1851, and ordered to paid into Court by an order suspended in its operation for a sufficient period to allow of such an Act being obtained, and also to enable the Trustees to pay the expenses incurred in an application for an Act of Parliament in the Session of 1858, made by desire of the Grand Jury. The application was defeated in Parliament, and the Master of the Rolls declared himself reluctantly obliged in strict law to decree the Trustees personally liable for the expenses incurred until they should be exonerated from them by the authority of Parliament.

"As in both instances the Master of the Rolls strongly expressed his opinion that the miscarriage did not involve any charge or censure on the Trustees they confidently expect the sanction of this Grand Jury to a new application to Parliament for the objects above-mentioned, and an order that the services of the Solicitor to the Grand Jury shall be employed for the purpose.

"The Trustees take the opportunity of repeating their opinion that the New Free Bridge now in course of construction and the causeways and approaches to it should be made in such a manner as to afford the most complete accommodation to the public, and so far as including a short additional approach on the North side to the main road towards Castlebridge, at Crosstown, and the further improvement of the road to Castlebridge, adding footpaths to the Bridge, the Trustees would ask your sanction and assent to an application for these purposes at a probable expense of £7,000. Finding that the Act of Parliament passed for the purposes of the Bagenalstown and Wexford Railway includes within its limits of deviation the land on which they conceive the most useful and most desired approaches into the town by the Main-street and the Quays, should be made, they regret that they must leave the question of these approaches to the consideration of the townspeople of Wexford, who, under the guidance of their member of Parliament, will, no doubt, be able to make an arrangement with the Railway Company satisfactory to themselves, and the most advantageous to the traffic of the town and county. Should such arrangements be made by the inhabitants of the town, which may be embodied in clauses to be inserted in the proposed Act of Parliament, accompanied by a plan and estimate to be submitted to your Solicitor for this purpose, before the time shall arrive for serving the Parliamentary notices, the Trustees suggest this Grand Jury should give your Solicitor your instructions to introduce such a clause in the Act as will enable the Trustees to make such approaches at an expense not to exceed £7,000, provided presentments be made for same by the Grand Jury, and the amount of all the sums to be raised be levied in the same manner as is now provided for the other sums to be raised for the construction of the New Free Bridge and its approaches. One-half to be payable by the landlord, and that all the sums shall be raised by instalment within three years, which would not entail an annual county rate (to be divided between landlord and tenant) of more than one penny in the pound at each levy."
