WEXFORD FREE BRIDGE.

132— We present the sum of £192 11s 2d to be paid to the Trustees of the Wexford Free Bridge out of the sums levied for queries discharged by the Grand Jury, but remaining unpaid, and to the credit of the County, to be applied by them in aid of the road between the New Bridge and the Ferrycarrig road. 6 and 7 w 4, c 116, s 145. Allowed.

REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES.

The Trustees of the Wexford Free Bridge beg to report to the Grand Jury that the New Bridge and the approach roads are now in a condition to be opened for public traffic, in accordance with the report of the Engineer to the Trustees, hereto appended. Some trifling matters still remain to be completed, and some outstanding liabilities to be discharged, and arrangements made with the Government and Board of Works for the removal of the Old Bridge, and causeways, when the Trustees hope to be able to close the accounts and wind up the trust committed to them.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

GENTLEMEN—The approaches to the Bridge from town, and from the mailcoach road at Elmville gate, are very nearly completed; and as a tender was provisionally accepted at the last Presenting Sessions for maintaining them by yearly contract, it is very desirable that they should be taken off the contractor's hands, and so enable the Grand Jury to confirm the new contract for maintenance. Some of the walls have yielded to the pressure of the fillings; and if a satisfactory arrangement can be made with the contractor, to whom a small balance on each work remains unpaid, for securing their repair and readjustment, and for the execution of some trifling matters, such as furnishing and setting the terminating stone caps on the curved walls adjoining the abutments of the Bridge—the total cost of which would not probably exceed a sum of about sixty pounds—the roads may be taken up and opened for public traffic.

In the strict line of my duty I am bound to demand that the contractor should execute those completing works before I can give him a final certificate. I think it, however, just to all parties to remind you of the unusually peculiar difficulties created by the treacherous and unequal character of the ground on which these approaches have been constructed, and also of several circumstances that occurred during their progress to obstruct them and render the position of the contractor more difficult—all of which are so well known to you that it would be needless to detail them.

Carefully weighing these matters, I take the liberty of placing them before you as deserving your favourable consideration with reference to the contractor, and as to whether the required conditions which, as I have said, it is my duty to demand from him, may not be remitted and left to the gradual process of usual repairs, as necessity may from time to time require, with the exception of the terminating caps which are separate from works of maintenance, and which he should execute in any case.

The store for the custody of the painting stages and tools connected with the Bridge, which is being erected in accordance with your instructions, will soon be finished.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your most obedient servant,

JAMES B. FARRELL.
